CHICAGO, Nov. 18. (P)—America's most demonstration of pure idealism and unselfish patriotism is the conservation movement, in the belief of Vice-President Dawes.

Addressing the Chicago Isaac Walton League last night over a nation-wide radio hook-up, Gen. Dawes said:

"Those who adhere to conservation solely for the love of the out-of-doors, who comprehend their duty only in the planting of a tree, purifying a stream, protecting a bird's nest or otherwise making the out-of-doors a little cleaner or more beautiful have justification enough for their work and reward in it."

"But there is another aspect of conservation that challenges the attention of 125,000,000 Americans; and that is the economic. On these grounds alone we may call upon self-interest of one people and justify all the time and energy expended in a conservation movement."

Gen. Dawes deplored the depletion of the forests without reforestation, the pollution of streams and the lack of attention these things have felt from the people and the makers of laws.

MISSING MAN'S BODY FOUND ON BEACH

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18. (P)—A body identified as that of Bernard L. Hallmayer, 82 years of age, of 456 North Second street, San Jose, who had been missing since yesterday was found on the ocean beach near the town of Watsonville with stones. Police first believed the man had committed suicide, but San Jose police found a note in Hallmayer's bedroom indicating that he feared he would be murdered, and began investigation of that theory.

REDS EXHORT ON WARS TO COMEBolsheviks Preach Treason as Communists' DutyHopes for Anglo-American Conflict Run HighManifesto Urges Readiness for Blow in Back*

MOSCOW, Nov. 18. (P)—Communists the world over are being called upon to get ready for "the coming war."

As Moscow foresees it, at least two big ones are on the way, the first a struggle between two imperialist countries and the next the whole capitalist world against soviet Russia. By making use of one or the other it is the hope of the Communists' International that the "proletariat" will arise everywhere and achieve the "world revolution" of which Lenin dreamed.

CAMPAIGN MAPPED

A wordy manifesto telling Reds what to do about these coming wars before, during and after, was adopted by the sixth congress of the Communist International at its recent sessions in Moscow. The manifesto, drawn up by Tom Bell, filled twenty-seven columns of the Communist newspaper Pravda.

Boldly down, the manifesto announced to this:

"With the official canvas of votes nearly completed, we are prepared now that the final result will vary but slightly from that indicated by the police returns a few days following the election.

The winning candidate is practically maintaining through the official campaign and the labor unions one half of 1 per cent of the total vote of over 4,000,000. I take this opportunity of congratulating Mr. Roosevelt, wishing him a successful administration in the interests of all the people of the State of New York."

COMMUNISTS' HOPE

The struggle for markets is sharpening and bringing on an inevitable conflict between two great imperialist countries. No names, no surnames, mentioned no names, but Russian writers often predict a clash between England and the United States.

But this war between capitalists, if it comes, will be but a sideshow. The real conflict, according to the manifesto, will be between the capitalist world and the soviet union, and its cry will be "struggle for peace against Bolsheviks, for the struggle of civilization."

STARS ENLIGHTENED

Now what should the proletariat do about all this? First "it must understand that the proletariat does not know what defense of fatherland means." The manifesto adds, "The proletariat has no fatherland so long as it has not conquered political power and taken away from exploiters the means of production."

When the "imperialist" war breaks out Communists in constant contact with the masses will do their best to defend their fathersland. They must, on the contrary, do all they can to bring about their country's defeat.

Parents twice had left large bonds behind him to enjoy a few months of freedom. He jumped a $60,000 bond in San Francisco and a $100,000 cash bond in Vancouver. When he was rearrested, he was arrested again in Vancouver Wednesday, six months after his last disappearance and ordered deported.

"My wife told me to take the rap and get it over with," Parents explained.

PRINCE'S PARTY Reaches Arusha

NAIROBI (British East Africa) Nov. 18. (P)—The Prince of Wales and his party, who have been having exceptionally good luck on their hunting expedition, arrived at Arusha Friday after a delay at London due to a breakdown of their motor car.

TREASON PREACHED

There are many ways. A civil war must be started against the bourgeoisie, the masses must be encouraged to rise in revolt, a general strike should be brought about, propaganda should be carried on in factories and among working women's organizations, in factories and elsewhere. In short, action of Lenin and his followers when Russia was at war with the Central Powers should be taken as a model.

Finally an effort must be made in this direction to set up a proletarian dictatorship.

While waiting for these events to pass, the Comintern says the proletariat must struggle against "disarmament, lies and false pacifism."

This claim does not mean Communists suffer," the manifesto said "is an insufficient realization of the inevitability of war."

Fete Launches Air-Mail Route

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 18. (Exclusive)—An air-mail service between Mexico City and Matamoros in the State of San Luis Potosi has been established. The arrival of the first plane, which carried two letters and one passenger, was the occasion of a fiesta in Matamoros.

Twelve of the pretty señoritas of the town welcomed the pilot and his crew and presented them with flowers. A daily service will be maintained between the capital and the interior city.

SESSION OPENS TODAY

Arizona Legislators to Convene for Work of Code Revision

PHOENIX, Nov. 18. (P)—Members of the Eighth State Legislature will convene at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning for the opening of their fifth special session and it is believed that the work of code revision, the most important subject to be considered, will not be completed until the end of the year.

The fundamental purpose of the special session, according to Gov. Hunt's call, is for the enactment of the revenue bill, prepared by Judge Strickmeyer, and by the code committee of the Legislature.

This work is expected to be tedious and uninteresting from the public's point of view, but important to the State, and especially to members of the State bar.

North to Build New High-Speed Traffic Artery

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18. (P)—Realization of a twenty-two-year-old official dream for another high speed traffic artery down the peninsula is in process with the beginning of excavation for the new Bernal cut, a $1,400,000 highway through the hills of the Mission district into San Mateo county. The cut will be 4,000 feet long with forty-two-foot roadway for vehicular traffic and a right of way for a street car line.

Its redeeming factor of outstanding public interest is that it will have no cross streets and will permit of fast driving with safety.

Bonds were voted in 1927 as part of a $6,000,000 street improvement issue.

Police Study Tear-Producing

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17. (Exclusive)—Chief of Police O'Brien proposes a school of training for 225 members of the police force so they can learn how to produce tears.

The tears, however, are designed for the police, but for lawbreakers

and can be accomplished, the chief says, by shooting a picked squad how to handle tear bombs.

RUMANIA LOOKS TO NEW LINCOLN

Maniu Hopes to Lift Curse of Balkanism From Nation

Premier Patterns Life After American Emancipator

United States His Model in Reshaping Government

BUCHAREST (Rumania) Nov. 18. (AP)—Sitting beneath a faded portrait of Abraham Lincoln after whose life he is endeavoring to pattern his own political career, Julius Maniu, Rumania's new Premier, declared today he intends to end the curse of Balkanism from Rumania and give its people an enlightened government based on the principles of enunciated by the great Civil War President.

"Our regime," said the Transylvanian premier, "will be truly 'a government of the people, by the people, for the people.' Lincoln freed the slaves; our task is to emancipate millions of our peasants who heretofore have been held in a state of virtual vassalage by rapacious political cliques who have exploited them for their own gain."

MORALITY TO RULE

"I am confident that the forthcoming elections in which the legions of toilers of Rumania will be free for the first time to cast their votes honestly will usher in a new era of public honesty, cleanliness and morality in our national life. Heretofore morality has bent the knee to politics; we shall reverse that. Morality will be enthroned with the figures of justice, righteousness and national honor."

That the new Premier backs up his proposed reforms by vigorous acts is shown by his abdication of censorship and restriction on personal liberty. He has adopted martial law throughout the country except in a seven-mile-wide zone along the Russian frontier. He has dismissed hundreds of office-holders who had sinned, to say the least.

CHANGES PREDICTED

Emphasizing his words with vigorous gestures, Maniu, who is just past 55 years of age, but looks ten years younger said: "After the approaching elections in which we expect to be successful, there will be a complete, moral, political, economic and financial metamorphosis in Rumania. Our first act will be to inaugurate a real Parliamentary and constitutional regime, such as you have in the United States, based on the will and desires of the people."

Tens of thousands of Rumanians from Transylvania, Banat and other provinces who have been in the United States will help to educate our uninitiated, but unsophisticated, majority in political and other matters.

"We shall tear down the highly centralized government erected by Vintile Bratianu which placed the whole country at the mercy of a small cabal in Bucharest and called for a return to a decentralized régime such as that of the United States, in which all provinces shall have an equal voice. With 15,000,000 sturdy, honest, sober and industrious peasants forming the key-stone of our new political structure, we cannot fail."

CAPITAL NEEDED

"As we shall have political liberty, so shall we attain economic independence. Bratianu's policy of economic Chauvinism and his narrow dictum of Rumania for Rumanian brought us to the brink of an abyss, paralyzed our industrial development and discredited the entry of foreign capital. Rumania is one of the few countries of Europe which, like the United States, is self-sufficient. We require only foreign capital to help us develop our vast natural resources which have lain idle under Bratianu's stewardship."

"You may tell commercial America that we welcome to Rumania not only her bankers, but her engineers, architects, and mining experts. They will be given the same rights and opportunities as guarantee to our own capital and scientific technicians. We shall be especially happy to have American journalists come to Rumania to judge for themselves what the national peasant government is accomplishing outside of our open to all Americans, for whom Rumania stands with the highest regard and friendship."

MINING LAW CONDEMNED

"Our relations with foreign countries have doubtless suffered by the stupid mining law of 1924, under which all foreign companies became Rumanian. We shall do away with this almost confederacy law so that foreign firms may enjoy the same rights as domestic companies. It is ridiculous and pernicious to believe, as did Bratianu, that an adolescent and undeveloped country like Rumania can be built up by its own efforts alone. We must have foreign money, brains and enterprise. None do we invite more cordially than America."

It is my aim to introduce into Rumania American efficiency and scientific management; indeed, both politically and commercially, the United States has always been my head of hair for life," says Hause.

ideal of a state. We have learned much from America, this country and shall learn more in the future. It is to Woodrow Wilson's magnificent defense of the rights of small nations and subject races that the millions of Rumanians in Transylvania and other provinces owe their freedom. The fathers of our small nation will always remember with gratitude that great act, nor shall we forget all the help we received from America during the war."

Whittier College Youth and Oakland Girl Voted Best in Coast Contest

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18. (AP)—Two California singers, Miss Dove Irene and Donald Novis, of Oakland, and Donald Novis, 22, tenor of Pasadena, were announced today as winners of the far western radio district contest held last Monday night in which singers from nine western states participated.

Miss Kilper was announced as No. 49 and sang the "Caro Nome" aria from Rigoletto. She is a junior at the University of California. Novis was announced as No. 98 and sang in French aria as "Ma Non Lessaut." He is a student of Whittier College.

These two singers were the emphatic choice of the radio audience, which gave them unanimous preference over those outside California as within the State itself. The vote of listeners counted 60 per cent and the vote of a special board of judges, two from each State in the district who liked the two singers, counted 40 per cent.

Second-place winners, who were designated as alternates are Miss Helen Copeland, 18, Arizona soprano, No. 46; and Gordon Edwards Cross, 22, Washington tenor, who were designated as alternates are Misses June Krivaneck, Oregon contralto, and Misses Irene and Donald Novis, 22, Washington tenor, who were designated as alternates are Misses June Krivaneck, Oregon contralto, and Misses Irene and Donald Novis, 22, Washington tenor.

TRADE UNIONS FIX NEW GOAL

Doubling of Memberships to be Aim for Year

Executive Council Reveals Plan at New Orleans

Federation Convention Will Open There Today

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 18. (AP)—"Membership in 1929" is the slogan and the job the executive council of the American Federation of Labor will lay before the forty-eighth annual convention of the federation which meets here tomorrow.

The federation's annual report is a survey of the year's activity in organized labor. It said the paid-up membership in August, 1928, was 2,893,913, an increase of 81,387 over the previous year. Five hundred thousand men, who were on strike or unemployed, and for whom no tax was paid to the federation, are not included in the membership figures.

Reiterating the federation's support of the five-day week movement, the council's report said that most of the union workers representing twenty industries now are enjoying the shorter week.

WORKERS LISTED

The council stated that government reports indicate there were 8,076,550 wage earners in 1927, but no governmental agency has been recording the results of displacements of workers by mechanical devices and power. The report said instead there are methods which permit certain men to do the same amount of work in casting plowshares that formerly was done by sixty; two men doing what 128 performed in loading pig iron; one man replacing forty-two in operations on a machine; four men operating a machine making 200 bricks an hour which formerly required one man 711 hours. Some of the displacement of labor has been absorbed, said the report, in the creation of new industries and other activities.

Taking up public works, the report said that public officials are more and more turning their attention to preparing in ordinary times "for the period of stress which experience shows is likely to follow in a few months or a few years. Several progressive communities have made definite plans to reserve work on unimproved parks, roads and streets for future dull periods."

The report said that while the federation took a nonpartisan course toward Presidential candidates, dates but supported certain other nominees, the outcome will show that "the majority of members of Congress elected will be friendly to the legislative program of the American Federation of Labor."

PAN-AMERICAN AFFAIRS

Summarizing international labor conditions, the report said that the Pan-American Federation of Labor is being developed to deal with matters and policies of far-reaching importance to human relations in the Latin-American countries. We believe that commercial and industrial relations should not be permitted to dominate Pan-American international relations. The American Federation of Labor urges that a special effort be made for the continuation of the policy to draw the Americas closer together.

Confirmed support of legislation against child labor and of projected legislation to limit the use of court injunctions is urged.

Union members are also urged to stand by the policy of preventing Communistic forces from taking control of union labor organizations, as the "advocates of the Communists are ardent and disorganized trade unions and get control of union meetings have not abated."

SAINTE DENIS, ISLAND OF RE-UNION, Nov. 18. (AP)—Abd-el-Krim, one-time master of the Riff, who held the French and Spanish armies at bay and defied every effort of modern military genius to capture him, has grown weary and restless in exile in this far-off French colony.

Abd-el-Krim does not trouble himself to conceal the fact that he is confined among the mountains of the island, and the number of French soldiers who mount guard over him has been increased for fear he may suddenly decide the time has come to return to his own country.

The mountains which stretch the desert and stony mountains he is so familiar with, and for which the tropical luxury of reunion never has in the slightest degree compensated.

Visitors describe the former "Sultan of the Riff," as pacing up and down in the gardens of the Castle Morange like a lion in a cage.

"I am a prisoner and a prisoner is not happy," he told one visitor who met him if he was happy.

"Above all, I am far from my country—my people."

Confirmed support of legislation against child labor and of projected legislation to limit the use of court injunctions is urged.

AIR MARINES SAVE LIVES OF CHILDREN

Antihydrophobia Serum Rushed to Isolated Place After Dog Bites Two

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18. (AP)—How a navy doctor and Marines aviators saved two children bitten by a mad dog in Matagalpa, Nicaragua, is told in a letter from Capt. A. H. Schonrich, the pilot to Capt. George Lorenz Peland, commander of the Second Brigade of Marines, which was made public today by the Navy Department.

The pastor wrote that, when the two children were bitten native doctors had informed them their bites were incurable unless they were taken to Managua, and the conditions of the roads and rivers due to the rainy season prevented this.

As a last resort, the pastor said he had told Navy Lieutenant D. T. Hunter, stationed at Matagalpa, of

"Good-will Ship" Visits Land
of Superstitions

(Another of a series of articles by Fred House, Times Staff Correspondent on the Central and South American tour of the Panama Canal, which continues today. The Lasso liner is carrying nearly two hundred youths, wives by special courtesy of Prince Boncompagni Ludovisi, Governor of Rome, they will be taken up in airplanes to view the Eternal City from above.

The youths, who have from States over the Union, are here for the show.

"Caesar had to walk

adobe hovel of a native family, untouched and unspoiled by the veneer of white conquest that lies over the land.

Proud was this son of the race of the Incas, worshippers of the sun, who have been here since Antiquity what the Caesars were to the lands adjacent to the Mediterranean.

My companion told her that I would tell the white people of the North, who were not of the race of the Incas, of the injurious practices that were practiced on the Indians; and that they would perhaps send more money to the exploiters, but would send American dollars instead and the Indians to get back the lands that rightfully belonged to them.

During the "lag end" of winter, that during the months of June, July, August and September the sun never shines in the narrow valley between the Andes and the first range of the Andes. The only exception to this since official records have been kept was during the season of 1925-26. He explained that the Humboldt current flows north off the coast of Peru to a point near the equator, where it meets the cold water of the Peruvian current and turns sharply to the west. During that season the waters were troubled, and the Humboldt current was deflected more than 100 miles farther off shore. Then the sun shone for a season in winter, and some rain fell. But the next season it was back in its old course, and the heavy clouds returned.

Such is the curse of the Incas, as narrated to me by an old woman whose ancestors were subjects of the last Inca, treacherously murdered by the white "Conquistadors" after he extended to them the hospitality of his palace and his court, after he had listened to them the rations in gold and silver they demanded for his release.

She was so old that she had lost all reckoning of the seasons. Her eyes were almost sightless, and the last bit of ivory hearing aid from her ear was still remaining. She still remembered a few words of English; and when I spoke to her she said in the tongue of the Incas, according to my interpreter, "His voice is the voice of the old master. Ask him where the young master is."

Our guide, the adventure sought brought me to the adobe hovel in this remnant of a vanished age still lingers. It was her that I ended the day with, as the gray morning dawned, the one night we spent in Lima.

SUNDAY DAYS

For two days as the City of Los Angeles had skirted the coast of Peru, approaching the harbor of Callao, the gateway to Lima, the sun had not shone. During the two days in the valley of the river Rímac on which the Peruvian capital stands, I did not see the sun, and not until we had been twenty-four hours at sea and were far from the coast of Peru did the sun appear.

In the office of the American Consul, George A. Makinson, I commented on the absence of the sun and the atmosphere of gloom that hung over the valley. He told me it was not unusual, that we had armed a long time ago to the lack of sun and the reason the Incas chose its face for four months each year from the site of the old palace of the Incas."

I learned he had crossed the mountains from Brazil into Peru, an itinerant prospector, who had lived among the natives, won their sympathy and confidence, and that some of the treasured secrets from the time of the Incas had been given him.

He commented that he had requested that I canceled my engagement with the Consul, punched with him, dined with him, saw with him the best and the worst of the night life of the capital, and found my way as the morning dawned to his house.

"Incas were race come down from sun," she began, "but the last Inca fought with his brother, took away his lands and killed him. Sun God gathered that you are a writer. Perhaps you would like to hear the history of the lack of sun and the reason the Incas chose its face for four months each year from the site of the old palace of the Incas."

"One young priest wanted fight; but the others were jealous. They turned the heart of the Incas against him, and when they sacrificed him on the great altar in the sacred mountain.

"Then our people were many. They planted all the land of the valley; but it was not enough, and they began to eat the grass and made flat places on the sides of the mountain. Now they are few and scattered. They became the beasts of the white men, like the llamas. And it was all because the Incas, a child of the sun, killed his brother.

"Then our people were many. They planted all the land of the valley; but it was not enough, and they began to eat the grass and made flat places on the sides of the mountain. Now they are few and scattered. They became the beasts of the white men, like the llamas. And it was all because the Incas, a child of the sun, killed his brother.

"One old blind priest lived alone in a hut in the valley of the sun and moon. When the Incas came to him and told him the white skins had come and killed the Inca, he fasted for five days. Then he came from his hut, sacrificed the lamb of a llama, and when he had drunk some of the blood, he said the Incas had departed, but had left a curse behind, that for four months after the harvest the sun would not shine, and that no rain would fall. But after the tenth generation the Sun God would again give his children to the land, and the children who had remained faithful would be freed from their oppressors."

Then she asked me why I came; if it was to bring word to her of the little mistress.

My companion talked to her, and he was seen a native of the purest type, possibly 60 years of age. I could understand only a stray word, for it was a mixture of Indian and Spanish.

Then he explained to me that, six years ago, a white contractor came to Callao to build for the Peruvian government an armored gun boat patterned after the Merrimac. He brought with him his wife and while there she gave birth to a daughter. The woman seemed still in her youth, was the foster mother of the "little mistress." It was then she learned some English words she has still retained. He said the gunboat would sink shortly after it was launched, but he was an engineer with three Chilean vessels. Soon after the white master departed; but the faithful old native woman still hopes to hear before she dies some word of the "little mistress."

A hideous skin lying in a corner began to move, and a plaintive wail came from them. The darker of the two girls poured a yellow, sticky fluid from a gourd into a cup without a handle and took it to the child. "She's milk," said what she was feeding it, and he said it might be pig's milk, which the natives regard as healthy for children.

MILK FROM PIGS

I expressed polite incredulity, but was convinced later. As I was riding in an auto with Joseph Messmer of Los Angeles and his wife along the cement highway that connects Lima with the port of Callao, about five miles away, I saw an Indian woman fussing about a great black pig in front of a native adobe house. Mrs. Messmer exclaimed in consternation, "Goodness me! She's milking it!" I have lived long and traveled much, but I had never heard of milking pigs.

This house was built at the foot of a round hill, possibly fifty feet high. There are half a dozen of them in the plain between the capital and the port. They are the homes of the descendants of the ancient Incas. A deep-seated suspicion against disturbing the dust of the dead protects them from the relic hunters who have descended in Egypt the tombs of the Pharaohs.

After I had returned to my hotel, many hours in the shadow of the famous Lima cathedral, for three hours' sleep, I visited the church, saw the bones of Pizarro preserved in a glass coffin, went to the palace with others of the 250 nobles, pastimes to be received by Augusto Leguia, President and dictator of Peru—they call him the Bantam Mussolini—and met other notables.

I shall write of Peru and its President in another article. For the present, I am still under the enchantment of "the curse of the Incas."

FRELATE FLAYS VOTE RUMORS

Catholic Archbishop Denies Church Directed Ballots

Use of Mails for Attacks on Religion Protested

Respect of Laity Assured New Officers

CINCINNATI, Nov. 18. (P)—Archbishop John T. McNicholas of Cincinnati in an address before the National Council of Catholic Men here tonight protested against "insinuations that the Catholic Church, because of a Catholic candidate or for any other reason," attempted to control his political affiliations or tell him how to vote.

Nor did the church give the author any indication as to how any other Catholic citizen in his jurisdiction should vote, the archbishop said.

PROTESTS MAIL ATTACKS

"I wish, as a Catholic bishop, in the interest of my church," he said, "to protest against any party that is willing to be identified with attacks on any man's religion. God forbid that I ever should be silent in this community if the religion of any man, or that his faith were attacked and if our Catholic people were asked not to vote for him because of his religious belief. Nor can I remain silent when my religion is attacked."

The archbishop, especially as a Catholic bishop and as an American citizen, against whom the United States mails an agency to attack my religion. Some way ought to be found to prevent use of the mails for attacking any man's religion and the steps taken during political campaigns when unscrupulous politicians of all parties are willing to use any means, however infamous, to get votes."

ASSURES RESPECT

Observing what may be done by any individual member, Archbishop McNicholas declared that the Catholic Church, as a corporate entity, is incapable of "directing men to do wrong."

"We challenge the whole world to prove that the church is a teacher of truth that she leads men away from God or that she directs her members in any other way than those of truth and honor be said."

The archbishop assured each voter, from President-elect down to the smallest, that Catholic citizens will show respect for the "divine authority invested in them."

MONEY RATE CONDITIONS IMPROVING

Reserve Board Reports Situation Easier Despite Heavy Credit Demands

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18. (P)—Despite the higher level of rates, conditions in the money market in recent weeks were pronounced "somewhat easier" by the Federal Reserve Board in its November bulletin.

The early autumn peak of credit demand has been passed, the bulletin said, without causing the banks to increase their borrowings at the reserve.

Pressure of the high rates, it is declared, has been felt most by operators in the security market and least by persons engaged in trade and industry. This was because the "rise in rates during the past year has been larger for the stock exchange than for other commercial market loans, while the advance in rates has been still smaller."

"The present high level of money rates," the bulletin declared, "reflects the combined effect on the money market of a large loss of gold and of a firm money policy by the reserve banks during a period in which the volume of bank credit continued to expand."

Viscountess Dies Suddenly

LONDON, Nov. 19. (Monday) (P)—The Daily Mail today announced the death of Viscountess Pamela Grey after a sudden illness at her home at Walsford Manor, Salisbury. Her husband, the former Secretary for Foreign Affairs, was at his Palladian estate and was hurriedly summoned.

The Viscountess, who was the daughter of the late Sir Edward Wyndham, was 57 years of age. She first married Lord Glenconner who died in 1920. They had three sons and a daughter.

In 1922 she married Viscount Edward Grey, who had been a widower for sixteen years. She was the author of several books and was a fellow of the Royal Society of Literature.

Four Firemen Poison Victims

The city's fire-fighting forces were minus the services of four of their number last night as the result of ptomaine poisoning, according to records of Georgia-Street Hospital where the firemen were being treated.

Laurel, 24, reportedly dined on pork in a neighboring restaurant near their station at 1625 Calumet Avenue and immediately became violently ill. Treatment was administered first at St. Elizabeth Cass Hospital and later they were transferred to the City Hospital.

Car Ownership Open to All

A quarter of a century ago the man who owned an automobile enjoyed a distinction similar to that accorded the airplane owner today.

One way to join the "automobile class" is to buy a good used car. You will find many bargains advertised daily in the want-ad "Automobiles" column of the paper.

Southern Wind Warms Capital

CAMBRIDGE (Mass.) Nov. 18. (P)—Tear gas was used and three persons were arrested before a squad of twenty policemen could quell a riot which abruptly ended a football game between two amateur teams yesterday. Police were called when the score was estimated at 3000, surged onto the field near the end of a game between the Auburns of Cambridge and the University of Massachusetts, which forecasts a final score of 1000 to 1000. Other plans recommended a temporary truce, work soon. Other plans recommended a committee already been saved and started toward realization.

Another need exists for additional harbors to place the port on a self-sustaining basis, according to the Harbor and Commerce Committee of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. This position came after a recent clash of over 1000 persons, recommended the effectiveness of which, however, may be proved only by time.

Warship Becomes Good-Will Ship Today as President-Elect Starts Trip

U.S.S. MARYLAND

HERBERT HOOVER

ADMIRAL WILLIAM V. PRATT AND AMBASSADOR HENRY L. STIMSON

This morning the dreadnaught Maryland will cease to be a warship and instead becomes the bearer of peace and good will to republics of South America. Aboard will be President-elect Hoover, who will meet the peoples there and talk over mutual problems of the two Americas. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Hoover. As adviser on affairs of South America, Henry L. Stimson, Ambassador to Italy, will hold a high place in the councils of the President-to-be. Admiral Pratt, commander of the Pacific battle fleet, is in charge of arrangements.

MUST IRWIN SAIL HATLESS?

Note Writer Who Will Accompany Hoover Spends Sunday Looking for New Panama

It's the little things in life, you know.

Take the case of Will Irwin, for instance. Will is going to South America with President-elect Hoover on the good-will trip as correspondent for The Times and the North American Newspaper Alliance. He arrived in town yesterday morning with such an object in view but no Panama hat and this hat angle is important.

Will swung from the Santa Fe Club at 9:15 a.m. with a broad smile on his face, somewhat veiled, however, by an anxious look of the eye. The Times reporter's first reaction was that the famous kid had some weighty problem of state upon his mind. "The public disappearance of the worried look increased and the invading journalist began to mumble to himself."

He broke into a smile again, though, when spoken to, and after a moment's argument consented to pose for a picture with Ambassador Fletcher, a fellow-passenger and co-member of the official party, and Admiral Pratt, commander of the Pacific battle fleet.

HE WORRIES AGAIN

Then the worried look returned. "Well, this is winter," the reporter said, "and Panamas aren't much in style. I wonder if we can't modify our belief they are when it comes along this glorious Southern Cal."

"I know," interrupted Irwin, gathering to himself a huge bag, a portable typewriter, a heavy overcoat and a raincoat, "but I need a Panama hat."

"But Mr. Irwin," said the reporter, "this is Sunday and I want an interview concerning this trip to South America."

"Maybe we can find one in some little store," Irwin said, striding rapidly away from the train. "I have to have it."

"Now this interview," the reporter tried again.

"I'll write you an interview if I can find that hat," said Irwin, and a bargain was made at once.

SUCCESS SEEKS NEAR

After meeting with no success at several Main-street stores, the reporter, with Irwin in tow, found a hat store open on Fifth street.

"Have you a Panama hat?" the reporter asked the clerk. The answer was an icy stare and a muttered remark about, "somebody kidin' somebody."

"Well, this is Will Irwin and that's his for him," the reporter added with a smile of embarrassment.

The change was remarkable. Perhaps someone would be at the storeroom, the clerk thought, and there were Panamas hidden in the back room. He would go with Mr. Irwin at once. And he did.

But no one was at the store-room.

"However," said the clerk, "that was a great story you wrote about Herbert Hoover, and we'll locate some up here in California where we live so long and which I still consider the 'other home.'"

The story would end here according to all rules of fine writing, but it was the turn of the reporter assigned to cover the activities of Mr. Irwin, who besides being one of the nation's best-known writers and reporters, is a close friend and sometime classmate of Herbert Hoover, to inform the reporter that Mr. Irwin, the Panama-hatless at mid-night last night, and to place it mildly, was quite het-up because that hat clerk hadn't kept his promise.

HASN'T PROPER CLOTHES

"I started for here only on twenty-four hours' notice, with all the clothes up to my neck, and I didn't have to do before he broke for the far corners. I didn't even have time to buy tropical clothes, and am facing the equator in a felt hat. Consequently, I don't know any more than does the rest of the public what it's about."

"But you don't have to know that it's one of those bold strokes of sound originality which we may expect from Hoover."

"These people, not the Europeans, are the ones who are to blame," said Hoover, who knows intimately all the other five continents and the islands of the seas, doesn't know South America first hand. If nothing to Balboa, where a brief stop will be made for him to inspect the Panama Canal, and thence he will move down to the southern continent to visit most of the countries there.

No definite decision has yet been reached regarding the acceptance of invitations to visit Ecuador and Bolivia.

On the east coast of South America the homecoming trip, Mr. Hoover's party will board the battleship Utah and be brought to Havana, journeying from Cuba either to Key West or Miami, Fla., and probably remaining in that State until January's end before his inauguration on March 4.

The journey itself, it has been pointed out, will, in addition to the value of the knowledge gained and the benefits of the association of the President-elect with the peoples of the South American republics, give him a chance to problem ahead of him and lay his plans for the selection of a Cabinet for his administration. Then, after his return to this country, the appointments can be made after a series of conferences with political advise.

There has been little thought thus far given to Cabinet selections and the days since his election have been largely given over to rest and short visits. Irwin, the man whose five hours of correspondence that swept upon him after he was chosen for Chief Executive.

SIMPLE SERVICE

In that respect, except for the last-minute flurry of preparations for the journey, today varied but little from last Sunday when the President-elect delivered a speech at the Armistice Day service at the university chapel. Many of the symbols that last Sunday drew the attention of the worshippers to the fact of the day were commemorative of the one ten years ago when the earth again was touched by peace had been removed and the service was wholly different in character.

Today was the simple service of a college chaplain talking of the undergraduates of a university, explaining to them why they should not permit the questions that arise in their minds after a study of Fundamentalism, he said, is a bright upshot of civilization. Going ahead, he explained that man's conception of God continually was changing and developing through the various periods of history. He concluded with the declaration that faith should answer the various doubts that arose.

BATTLESHIP UTAH PREPARES FOR CRUISE

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)—The battleship Utah, on which President-elect Hoover will return from the East Coast of South America, steamed out of the Brooklyn Navy Yard today for Hampton Roads, Va., to take aboard fuel and stores for the voyage to Buenos Aires, where Mr. Hoover and his party will board the Maryland, where the party will board and the salute will be fired.

President-elect Hoover will pass immediately to the quarter-deck.

At 8 o'clock, he announced, armed patrol boats will enter the main channel under the command of Capt. Bruce L. Canaga of the U.S.A. Medics. These patrol boats will keep the channel clear of traffic until after the Maryland has sailed.

Ashore, two battalions of 300 men each from the U.S.S. Tennessee and the U.S.A. New York under the command of Lieutenants-Colonel F. J. Lowry will surround the special train. All streets to the naval landing have been roped off and will be closely guarded by special police details under Lieut. T. J. Dunn and the battalions of sailors.

INAUGURAL POMP URGED

Washington Starts Move to Make Hoover's Induction Into Office Brilliant Affair

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18. (Exclusive)—Unless Herbert Hoover makes an emphatic protest local interests are determined to usher in his administration with an old-fashioned inaugural celebration.

The President-elect has expressed his preference for a simple inauguration, but leading Washington citizens believe he may consent to a greater amount of pomp and display than has marked the taking of office of recent Presidents.

In former years it was customary for the various States to send their Governors, National Guards, regiments and bands to participate in the inaugural parade. The recent inaugurations have had only about as much of a parade as was necessary for the proper escort of the President and the arrival of Presidents from the White House to the Capitol.

The journey itself, it has been pointed out, will, in addition to the value of the knowledge gained and the benefits of the association of the President-elect with the peoples of the South American republics, give him a chance to problem ahead of him and lay his plans for the selection of a Cabinet for his administration. Then, after his return to this country, the appointments can be made after a series of conferences with political ad-

President-elect Hoover and his party will arrive in San Pedro aboard a special train from Palo Alto at 9:15 a.m. today. The private car will be detached from the baggage coaches and the latter will be rushed to Twenty-second street, whence the baggage will be transferred to the battleship.

Also will be on hand. Secret service men under W. W. Ashe will be scattered throughout the crowd and will be under the command of Mr. Edward McFadden, Captain of the U.S. Marine Corps.

The Maryland will sail directly to Corinto, Nicaragua, where it is expected to arrive on the 25th inst.

water. Although rumors of several deaths in the vicinity came today it is impossible to corroborate any of the reports. A Missouri Pacific Railroad foreman is reported to have been swept to his death and a woman to have been drowned when water invaded her home. Communication between various parts of the city is not possible. Property loss there is large.

At the Arkansas River at Nodaway, Kan., a misfortune has equalled a record of twenty-eight feet and was still rising. Railroad tracks for miles east of the city are submerged, and partly washed out.

Charles Waterman, a steamboat captain at the naval landing for the battleship, said he had been unable to get to his post.

Waterman, who ploughed into the river when first drove him from the Santa Fe pump house Saturday, is still missing today.

The White Eagle Refinery was partially submerged and two 55-barrel tanks of oil were adrift. The plant, located near the river, was destroyed by fire.

Investigations are being conducted to determine whether the accident was caused by a collision between the Santa Fe and the White Eagle.

Board to Meet
Ruling Pending on Motion for Directed Verdict
Counsel Asserts Perjury Harmless
Prosecution Charges Senate Inquiry Delayed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18. (AP)—With a ruling pending on a motion for a directed verdict of not guilty, the trial of Robert W. Stewart on charges of perjury arising from testimony given before the Senate Teapot Dome committee tomorrow will enter its second week.

The motion was entered Friday by Frank Hogan, chief counsel for Stewart, who is chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. Hogan argued that the Senate committee was not a "competent tribunal" that had evidence to support allegations of perjury and "was brought out by the government and that Stewart could not be held legally liable for perjury since he corrected in April erroneous statements made in February at what was in effect a continuation of the same hearing."

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover, replying for the government, upheld the regularity of the committee meetings and challenged the precedents cited by the defense in support of its contention that Stewart had absolved himself of the perjury charge at his second appearance before the committee.

Asked by Justice Bailey if any harm had been done by Stewart's asserted failure to answer, Rover declared that the Senate committee had been "bewildered and frustrated" for a period of two months in its efforts to disclose the distribution of the Liberty Bond oil profits of the Continental Trading Company, Ltd., Canada.

Canada's Minister of Finance found their way from Harry F. Sinclair to Albert R. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior.

The indictment charged that Stewart committed perjury by denying that he knew anything of the distribution of these bonds and that he received any of the bonds himself.

At his second appearance before the Senate committee, Stewart testified that he had received Liberty Bonds from the president of the Continental Trading Company to the value of $750,000.

NEWS OF SOUTHERN COUNTIES

CITY TO FIGHT TRAFFIC LINE

Santa Barbara Will War on Street-Car Company

Vigorous Battle Planned on Discontinuation Plea

Transportation Heads Say Road Operated at Loss

SANTA BARBARA, Nov. 18.—This city will enter a determined legal fight to defeat the contemplated action of the Santa Barbara and Southern Railway Company to abandon its street car and bus service here the first of the year, according to announcement by city officials today.

Intention of the carrier system to discontinue its services here on Dec. 1 was announced yesterday when City Attorney Bingham was notified that the company was filing application with the California Railroad Commission to abandon its bus and street-car system here.

STEADY LOSS ASSERTED

A copy of the petition, which charged that the company has been operating at a loss for years, was given the City Attorney by A. G. Walmsley, district manager of the Southern California Edison Company.

Councilman Parsons stated last night that it was almost certain that the city would put up a battle to hold the company to its franchise, at least, until some arrangement could be worked out to give residents of the city more means of transportation. The company holds several franchises with the city, according to City Clerk Taggart. Copies of the franchise were not available, but Parsons said they have from twenty to fifty years to run. Councilman Parsons said he would favor action to force the company to carry out its franchises until another system could be substituted.

The street-car company, which is owned by the Edison Company, gives as its reason for wishing to go out of the transportation business the fact that the cost of operation is at a rate of $174,192.22 since 1924. The application sets forth that the increase in street-car and bus fares granted by the Railroad Commission a few months ago did not solve the financial problem.

RATE ADVANCE INSUFFICIENT

"The company has been sustaining heavy financial losses by running its operations at a loss," application states. "It has never paid its operating expenses and a reasonable return on the monies invested. Notwithstanding a recent increase in rates, it appears impossible to meet operating charges, interest on funded debts and depreciation. The applicant has carefully canvassed the possibilities of future improvement of its business and is of the opinion that there is little likelihood of being able to meet its legitimate operating charges, interest and depreciation in the future due largely to the increased use of private automobile transportation in the city that did not result in compensated portions of the city are so short that a greater part of the public does not see fit to use the street railway as a means of transportation."

Elderly Doctor Severely Burned With Gas Stove

PASADENA, Nov. 18.—Dr. William A. Shapley, 80 years of age, of 180 North Mentor avenue, was critically burned today when he fainted and fell asleep with a gas heater in his bedroom. Relative saw smoke pouring from his room and discovered him lying unconscious on the floor, his right clothes a mass of flames. After the fire had been extinguished, the aged man was rushed to a nearby hospital where he was given first aid by Dr. J. P. Szukalski for first and second-degree burns of his chest and back.

Physicians at the Pasadena Hospital, where Dr. Shapley was transferred for further treatment, state that he has a fair chance to recover.

HOPI INDIAN DESIGN HOTEL BEING STARTED

HEMET, Nov. 18.—Ground will be broken here tomorrow for the new $150,000 Hotel Alessandro. It will be of Hopi Indian design and will contain seventy guest rooms, each with private bath. The contract calls for completion of hotel early in February. Roy M. Cliven, former Ventura hotel man, will be the manager.

BALDWIN PARK GETS PARK

Ten-Acre Tract Finally Assured for Public Use After Three Years of Activity by Citizens

BALDWIN PARK, Nov. 18.—Official announcement was made yesterday of the culmination of more than three years of co-operative effort by a citizens committee to create a ten-acre centrally-located public park, which will be known as Morgan Park. The committee, including C. H. Bank, Ira D. Pontius, W. A. Garner, D. J. Shula, Horace Dimmick, S. Howard Leech and others, disclosed that the park bonds have been sold.

The park will be located immediately north of the Pacific Electric tracks and two blocks west of the main business center. It is accessible from all points.

Early in 1925 a group of twenty citizens conceived the idea that this community should have a public park and, after a review of the entire community, ten acres of the Morgan tract were agreed upon, underwritten and purchased. Since that time the underwriters have carried the plot awaiting the out-

Aged Family Celebrates Again

HARWOOD CLAN ASSEMBLES

Three Brothers and Two Sisters—the Youngest 86 Years of Age—Gather for Birthday

SAN DIMAS, Nov. 18.—A family of five children, four of whom are over 80 years of age and the youngest, 86, celebrated the ninetieth birthday of Alfred P. Harwood, youngest of the three boys, this afternoon with a reception at the palatial home of Frank H. Harwood, son of the honoree who is 56 years old.

The eldest of the family, Mrs. Susan Lester of Phoenix, Ariz., arrived yesterday afternoon by train, traveling here especially for the anniversary celebration.

Every year the family holds a birthday party which honors one of the five. The Harwood family moved to California almost fifty years ago, and ten years afterward established their home in Upland where they gained prominence in the citrus business.

The honoree's brother, Alfred, is the father of two daughters, Mrs. Mary Woodford of Claremont, and Mrs. Grace Harwood Thayer of Los Angeles, and a son, Frank H. Harwood of San Dimas, with whom he makes his home. The son has nine grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. His other brothers and sisters are Charles E. Harwood of Upland, who is 96 years of age; Mrs. Katherine Tracy, also of Upland, who is 86 years of age; and Rev. J. H. and Rev. C. H. Post of Pomona.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Post of Upland in Anniversary of Wedding

UPLAND, Nov. 18.—With a host of friends reminiscing, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Post, 212 South Orange street, turned back the hands of time to November 18, 1888, sixty years ago, when they married. Mrs. Post, now 86, was born Mary Matteson to the altar.

It was in Pomona, O., where they were married. There they lived in Ohio for twelve years. Three children were born to them here.

They made their home at Fonda, Iowa. For twenty-one years they lived there, and two more children came into their family. The next move was to Burlington, Iowa, where they lived until the fall of 1905, when the lure of California brought them to Whittier. Then this couple claimed residence in Pomona.

Citrus fruits proved a successful venture for the Post. He is now retired from active life, and spends his time at his home, and with his unseen radio equipment.

Post often attends football games broadcast on radio, and spends his time at his home, and with his unseen radio equipment.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Post are members of the Methodist church and the Knights of Columbus.

Among the fraternities and sororities to hold reunions were the Kappa Sigma, Sigma, Alpha Gamma Phi, Delta Kappa Phi and the Kappa Psi Zeta.

Homecoming Ends in Dinner

REDLANDS, Nov. 18.—Homecoming for the former students of the University of Redlands came to an end today when "Old Guards" returned to the homecoming a victory to the campus. Almost every organization on the campus had a reunion, parties were given and everyone did his best to show former students a good time. Six hundred guests were entertained in the gymnasium for the largest alumni dinner ever staged at the school.

The man, who is unusually active for his age, was found by the reporter, cultivating his pruned bushel bed. Mr. Harwood drives his own car and makes it a point to keep in practice by taking his family and friends out almost every day.

SANTA ANA CANYON ROAD UP IN MEETING

SANTA ANA, Nov. 18.—Efforts toward including Santa Ana Canyon road in the State highway system, will be put forth tomorrow when a meeting of Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino county representatives is held at Riverside. The frame recommendations will doubtless fix its floor space.

State Senator-elect Edwards of Orange will attend the meeting and has announced that he would continue to devote his attention to adoption of the canyon road as State highway. The movement that he started while a member of the State Highway Commission.

FACTORY MOVES INTO INGLEWOOD

INGLEWOOD, Nov. 18.—John R. Holland of the Holland Manufacturing Company, formerly of Hawthorne, has taken a long-term lease on a building in the Inglewood Industries area for the guidance of a subsidiary, the New Port Harbor.

The concern employs about twenty-five men and plans to increase that number in the near future. The work has begun on an addition to the present building that will double its floor space.

The present structure is a one-story modern factory building of 6000 square feet of floor space. Work will begin at once in the new quarters on a contract for a new church in San Diego.

NORTWICH BEACH JOINS IN OUTDOOR CHRISTMAS

NORTH BEACH, Nov. 18.—The Chamber of Commerce of the Newport Harbor district are to be asked to make the coming Christmas season an illuminated outdoor Christmas.

The Chamber of Commerce at a meeting of directors yesterday decided to take steps in this matter. The movement was inaugurated by the Los Angeles chamber, which is asking all organizations in the Southland to co-operate in making this Christmas the best ever.

Electric lights will be used liberally on trees in the yards of residents and along the streets as part of the plan.

BEEKEEPERS WILL MEET DECEMBER 15

SANTA ANA, Nov. 18.—Discussion of quarantining measures, election of officers and other business will be transacted at the annual convention of the Beekeepers Association of Orange County Farm Bureau, scheduled for December 15. A report on the State convention of beekeepers, which will be held December 6, 7 and 8 at Modesto, will be made by Roy K. Bishop, county bee inspector.

The park will be located immediately north of the Pacific Electric tracks and two blocks west of the main business center. It is accessible from all points.

THIEVES TAKE OLD-TIME GUNS

Seven Historical Pistols Are Stolen in Pasadena

Wild West Museum Robbed of Valuable Weapons

Fingermarks on Sword May Give Clues for Arrests

PASADENA, Nov. 18.—While the ghosts of California's steady-eyed pioneers protested, seven valuable revolvers which had an important part in the establishment of law and order in the days of '49 were stolen last night from W. Parker Lyon's Wild West Museum on Keene Drive.

Devoid of all superstition, the thieves squeezed through a hole in the north end of the building, which was a replica of the fortresses through which the frontiersmen fired volleys at bandits gangling the early days. They had no trouble breaking open a case, however, which hangs a noose that was used to strangle three infamous stage robbers.

"It's too bad none of the ghosts were strong enough to tell that bell," said Lyon, as he pointed to an old vigilante bell which is part of one of the most complete collections of wild west curios in existence.

Mr. Lyon, museum proprietor held a conference this afternoon with "Fur" Goodman of Temple, and the two authorities on "bad men" announced that they will set some explosive bear traps in an effort to catch and future providers who dare enter the museum.

Due to the fact that the stolen weapons carried grim pedigree for accurate shooting, Lyon declared that the thieves may have been Los Angeles gunmen who were trying to rob the museum.

The museum's record "bad men" perpetuated the theft is that two sets of heavy brass knuckles were taken.

One of the highlights of the burglary is that an historic sword, Admiral James G. Cushing of the United States Navy, was used by the burglars to pry the glass from the gun case. Fingerprints discovered on the blade of this sword by Detective Lieutenant Kaighin and Decker may lead to the identification of the thieves, according to Lyon.

The most valuable of the revolvers taken was obtained by the museum from the Wells Fargo Express Company. It was used by a Wells Fargo guard on a pony express and bore eight knots on its grip.

Little Theater of Pasadena in Eleventh Year

PASADENA, Nov. 18.—The eleventh anniversary of the founding of the Pasadena Community Playhouse, center of dramatic art in this city, was observed yesterday. Speaking of the theater and its work to a group of art patrons who gathered to congratulate him, Gilmore Brown, director, stated that the "little theater" has won recognition in many parts of the United States and the Pasadena Playhouse hopes to increase its reputation for unusual productions. While the novelty of drama, motion picture, drama seemed to be solving the specific needs, never satisfied the demand for theatrical entertainment of the people.

The proof of this fact rests in the growth of the audience, the groups and rapid accumulation of the so-called little theaters, until it is now estimated that there are 2000 of these groups throughout the country which are working to realize the newer drama of the more intellectual type," Brown said.

ZIEGLER AND WIFE MAKE JOURNEY FIRST PLANNED IN 1873

Christian Ziegler and Wife Make Journey First Planned in 1873

SANTA MONICA, Nov. 18.—A honeymoon delayed since 1873 was completed today by Mr. and Mrs. Christian Ziegler of this city when they returned from a 10,000-mile trip around the Los Angeles River.

Mr. Ziegler is 73 years of age and his wife is 77. Both declared the spell of Hawaii's moon and tropics took them off their toes.

They outlined the secret of their long happiness, in which they declared they have lived without quarrels without a quarrel. It was that each party to the marriage contract must try always to please the other.

Ziegler, an electrical manufacturer since 1900, said he is "too young to retire and expect to make a fortune in the next twenty years. He was married on October 30, 1873, at North Dover, O. They have one son, Oliver D. Ziegler of Chicago.

ATTIC PRODUCES TREASURES

Letters From Gen. Lafayette and Baron Humboldt Together With Money Issued in 1856 and Old-time Books Discovered in Upland Housecleaning

UPLAND, Nov. 18.—The attic of the T. R. Woodbridge home on West Twentieth street proved to be a veritable chest of treasures, when Woodbridge undertook the task of clearing out the accumulation of things they decided to save in the past.

In the bottom of an old trunk Woodbridge uncovered a letter written by Gen. Lafayette to Baron Humboldt in France. It was written in Paris, in October, 1829, and addressed to Rev. William C. Woodbridge, president of the local mission.

The letter was not in an envelope, but so folded that the sheet provided its own covering. It was heavily sealed with wax.

Another letter was written by Baron Humboldt, the explorer, to Woodbridge's grandfather. A third prize in the old trunk was a dollar "bank note of 1856" from the Bank of Vermont. Vermont institutions numbered Woodbridge's grandfather as a director. The latter was one of America's outstanding figures of early days. He gained fame as a writer and traveler, and is said to have written the book "Travels in the United States, England, France and Italy," which is still in print.

His collection is a possession of one of the relatives published by him in 1828. The geography ran into thirty editions. The book owned here is one of the first editions.

KETTLEMAN HILLS RUSH DUE

Five New Projects Slated for Early Start as Result of Milham Completion

Five drilling projects are starting up in the Kettleman Hills during the next few days, as a result of heavy production obtained there by the Milham Exploration Company in its Elliott No. 1 well, and other drilling projects will doubtless be launched soon after the return from New York of Milham officials who have gone there to discuss plans for field work during the coming year.

The Standard Oil Company of California, which owns in fee more than 30,000 acres in the Kettleman Hills district, is planning to start two wells at once. One will be drilled on Sec. 11, 21-17, and the other on Sec. 1, 21-27. The former will be drilled first and will be known as No. 71, while the latter will be No. 28.

Considerable interest attaches itself to the fact that Tom Miley is one of the most prominent within a few miles of the oil fields.

The completion last week of the extending lease on the south makes it possible to complete the field, as a production plant had previously been located on the north side of the three wells now in the Kettleman Hills.

The Los Angeles-Bell No. 2 is producing 3640 barrels per day, and the No. 1 is putting out 2500 barrels per day.

The Thomas Petroleum Company will drill on its property west of Kettleman Hills. This concern is to lease up to 1000 acres for oil and gas production. For leasing purposes the land is divided into 160-acre tracts.

The tracts will go to those who bid the highest bonus over the annual rental. The rental is 10 cents an acre the first year, 25 cents the second year and 50 cents for the third, fourth, and fifth years.

When oil or gas is produced in paying amounts, an eighth royalty supersedes the annual rental.

Counties in which the land lies are San Joaquin, Fresno, Tulare, and Inyo.

Andrews, Crane, Crockett, Culverton, Ector, El Paso, Hudspeth, Iron, Loving, Martin, Pecos, Reagan, Schleicher, Terrell, Upton, Ward and Winkler.

In addition to the different tracts of land which have been printed and is available for all who may contemplate submitting bids, it is stated by J. T. Robison, State land commissioner:

"The General Petroleum Corporation has gone back into its old Ochner No. 2 well, on the middle dome of the Kettleman Hills, and about two miles distant from Milham well, and is cleaning it out for the purpose of drilling it again.

When the well is cleaned up it will be drilled again, probably 5000 feet when it got into a lot of trouble and suspended operations. It is thought that by taking it deeper oil may be developed."

PIPE LINE PUSHED

While the General Petroleum Corporation is hastening construction of a four-inch pipeline from Kettleman Hills to its Los Hills pumping station on the main pipe line to Los Angeles, Standard is using a short length of three-inch line to run oil from the well to a tank in the desert.

Standard has fifteen auto trucks and six trailers hauling oil from the Elliott No. 1 to Coalinga. On Saturday the trucks hauled away 3200 barrels of oil, while the well put another 1000 barrels into tank storage. Milham now has completed at the well 1000-barrel tanks, three 2000-barrel tanks, and one 1000-barrel tank.

While operators still are destined to declare that the entire Kettleman Hills district is one great oil field, and to assert that the Elliott No. 1 well may be a great well, it is small wonder that many operators are skeptical.

The Union Oil Company has entered the Kern Emidio district and has begun drilling its No. 1 well on Sec. 10-21.

The Texas Company is making preparations to erect an enormous gasoline absorption plant adjacent to the Elliott well. It plans on a capacity of about 100,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day. The Southern California Gas Company is said to be surveying for a pipe line to carry the gas from the field to the town of Lemoore, in which it has a distributing franchise, and perhaps to the town of Hanford.

Oil Activity on Kern Front Forges Ahead

The Kern front has shown a spurt of activity during the past week with the Associated Oil Company starting one new well and the Texas Company beginning two. The Associated is rigging up for its No. 24 well on Sec. 23-27.

The Texas Company is pumping water from its No. 1 well at a rate of about 175 barrels daily. The No. 12 is drilling in shale at 1880 feet and a rotary is being rigged up to drill the No. 10.

The Chancor-Canfield Midway Oil Company's Kern Front well No. 21 is down 2210 feet, drilling in the Midway.

KERN TRACT BOUGHT FOR OIL DEVELOPMENT

The Kern tract is being purchased by diamond drilling, with demonstration that the ore zone extends well below the 2200-foot level, from which 8 per cent was cut for forty feet or more. Ore has been demonstrated consistently between the 1000 and 2200-foot levels, though without knowledge of the width. Considerable drifting has been done on the 1900, from which rich ore is being taken.

Another week is scheduled for completion of initial surface installations on the Shatuck-Denn property, including shaft retiming, assembling of a fine electric hoist and installation of new electrical and compressor equipment.

Copper Queen next month will move into its new "nurses' home," to cost about $100,000. The structure has been planned by Chief Surgeon George A. Bridge especially for needs developed in mining practice.

STRANGE GRIST IN SANITY COURT

Gentle Old Ladies, Violent Men in Procession

Great Care Exercised When Handling Mentally Ill

Only Dangerous Types Sent to State Institutions

A little white-haired old lady sat at a table opposite Superior Judge Gould presiding in the psychopathic court at the General Hospital. There was an air of refinement about her and she spoke her sentences were couched in correct English.

Speaking a little animatedly, she told the court that it was perfectly ridiculous being there in such a predicament for what she had done was not a crime. She train she was on her way to San Diego to apprehend a rascal who had beaten her out of a large sum of money.

"And," she exclaimed, looking triumphantly at the judge and the circle of psychiatrists and nurses around her, "when I arrived at the County Jail the Sheriff severely reprimanded these men for the outrage they had committed by interfering with my trip. He told them if they ever perpetrated such a thing again they would immediately be discharged from his service."

Further investigation by the court disclosed that the patient, for such the little old lady is, had been found aboard a Santa Fe passenger train about to leave Los Angeles. She had no ticket or funds. She told railway officials they would have to wait until the train arrived at San Diego where she would pay her passage as she expected, on arriving at her destination, to receive thousands of dollars.

ECHO OF DISASTER

A history of her case revealed that she is a woman of refinement and culture who, some years ago, lost between $50,000 and $100,000 through unwise investments, the financial disaster causing a mental derangement in her, from which she never recovered.

There was no evidence adduced before the court to show that she ever was violent so she was paroled to a woman friend who agreed to look after her.

A girl, young and pretty, came next. She stared vacantly at the wall, her hands clasped in the unintelligible words while nervously working her hands in her lap.

Her story is a short and pathetic one. The parents told the court how she had been attending high school. One day she was attacked by a rasher who, which she said, her development caused a complete physical breakdown followed by a serious mental condition. They are able to care for her and willing to do so, if permitted. The young girl was paroled to the family.

Another patient before the court was a tall, raw-boned Missourian. In a long and rambling narrative he relates how he came to the West Coast as the representative of a small society, that he had been making wine, that he had been drinking wine, that some one intensely was watching him all the time, and all the time he had done was to fire a revolver several times to frighten his mysterious observer.

Again if he had disturbed a religious meeting also, the patient said he had, for he had found they were not preaching the fundamentals of the real religion.

FOUND INSANE

Police officers told of apprehending the man at a tourist camp where he had frightened other campers by acting strangely and by firing a pistol.

The story of his hearing he was committed to the State Hospital for the Insane at Patton.

Another man was taken into the court by nurses. The affidavit cited that he frightened his wife with a threat to set a rat-tail fence bite her. She was the mother of the man's son, who was born in a box at the rear of their little ranch home. Officers had killed the snakes.

Psychiatrists told the court they found no taint of insanity in the rancher. Further testimony revealed there had been a family rift at the ranch home, that the man had made the threat against his wife, but he was sane and there was no likelihood of his putting his wife in danger. The man was paroled to Mrs. Jean McCormick, chief parole officer of the psychopathic court.

ENDLESS PROGRESSION

The above incidents are only a few cases in the endless procession of poor unfortunate constantly passing through the psychopathic court of Los Angeles county at the General Hospital. Not all are sent to the hospital, however, and records of the court show that about 40 percent of the patients are paroled.

Figures of the psychopathic court reflect the tremendous growth of Los Angeles county as a metropolitan center. From a few hundred cases in 1927, the number has gone by there are now that many a month. The records of the court show that 3750 cases were before the court in 1927. This year the figure will run to 4000 or more.

The figures are startling. They mean, however, that insanity is on the increase. Nor does it mean that the nervous, hectic mode of living in these modern days is causing more insanity.

NEW GAS RATES SOON IN EFFECT

Savings to Consumers Will be $500,000 Yearly

Both Companies Join in Slashing Prices

Revised Schedule to Date From December 1

The saving to Los Angeles gas consumers by the recent rate decision of the Railroad Commission will amount to $500,000 a year, according to City Attorney Stephens, who led city forces in the campaign for the reduction. The new rates will take effect December 1 and will apply to the two companies serving Los Angeles—gas consumers—the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation and the Southern California Gas Company. The City Attorney said that the decision is "nothing but a victory for the city." The saving in reductions in gas rates under the decision, the City Attorney said:

TWO ADVANTAGES

"The advantage which will be gained by the consumers is of two kinds: first, the actual rate reduction of three cubic feet has been reduced from 10 cents in the first block to 1-1/2 cents, and the total savings to the consumers of the two companies in the district will amount to approximately $500,000 per year. The second important feature of the decision is the manner of applying the rates."

"Under the old rate the company charged a minimum rate per month, whether any gas is used or not, but if sufficient gas is used to fill a bill of 100 cubic feet or more, then this small consumer receives the same rate as one using larger amounts and having a regular use for the gas. Under the new plan for the minimum rate of 50 cents the consumer receives only 300 cubic feet of gas."

EQUITABLE SPREAD

The object of this is, of course, that the so-called "excessive user," that is the person who has the facilities but who only makes occasional use of the gas, pays his fair share of the cost of having this valuable facility available to all.

Mr. Carter said: "It is as result of this that we desire it. As a result the regular house-holder who uses gas for cooking, water heating and house heating will have a reduced rate, because he will be relieved of the burden of furnishing the utility of the convenience user at less than cost."

"The effect of this principle will be far-reaching, and it is my belief that when it has been actually tried to a consumer or two, it may be possible to make a still further adjustment as the result of the more equitable spread of the cost."

The surrounding communities have also been benefited by this action, as the city of Los Angeles took the position that it did not advocate the placing of any greater burden on its neighbors than merely the additional cost of furnishing the utility to the more distant points. This has resulted in a considerable reduction to the consumers in these communities."

TRIBUTES PAID TO DR. LINDLEY

Care, to that buggy I owe many a lift to the school where I taught with Miss Ida Lindley, and in that buggy the Los Angeles Orphans' Home was placed—the orphanage to which the doctor gave his services as physician during all of his life. He died last week, even bearing the burden of the double office of president and physician.

When he died he left a full life behind him—this village grown with his help and blossomed into a great city, and he lived and died of a multitude of friends. What more can a man leave in this world? What more can one take from him?

The law provides that only those persons so far disordered in mind as to endanger health, person, or property are liable to arrest. This is protection to unfortunate only temporarily insane due to ill ness.

The psychopathic judge holds office one year.

COURSE OF PROCEDURE

When an asserted insane person has been apprehended he is taken to the psychopathic ward of the General Hospital to be held there for three days before arraignment.

The court sits twice a week on Monday and Thursday. It provides for the attendance of witnesses either on behalf of the asserted insane person or of the State. Persons asserted to be insane may demand a trial by a jury of twelve. Only about 10 per cent ask for a jury.

When a person is found to be dangerously insane by the medical examiners and is certified as such it becomes the duty of the judge, if he acts on their findings, to make an order confining the insane patient in a hospital for care and treatment.

After a patient has been committed to a State hospital for the insane if he is permanently restored to sanity, he may be certified as sane and discharged.

Such patients are found to be mentally ill but not dangerously insane.

Such patients are committed to the care of the probation officers of the court.

The law relative to the insane also provide for the apprehension, care and treatment of imbeciles and drug addicts who have lost the power of self-control.

The court is that class of cases can commit only for a definite time not in excess of two years.

WIFE BALKS AT PLEA

TO SHARE HER MATE

Joseph Benecig was an opera singer and temperamental which was all right with his wife, Mrs. Louise Benecig until it extended to being in love with several other women at the same time, she told Superior Judge Engs when applying for a divorce. The wife said that her husband loved another woman and that he wanted her to share him with her, which, she said, she would not do. A decree was granted.

LIGHT COST CONSIDERED

The City Council today considered the assessments to pay for the ornamental lighting installation on Vermont avenue from Manchester avenue to Eighty-eighth street.

KEYES INQUIRY WILL SPEED UP

vice detail, is listed to appear for testimony.

It is intimated that Deputy Chief Plummer will be asked about an anonymous telephone call which told him of the resurgence in the hotel investigation of which resulted in the arrest of Mrs. Grimes and Kellar.

The woman's arrest followed closely publication of an affidavit submitted to her in which she asserted that she was employed by Albert Marco, so-called vice baron, to "frame" Jacobson with the assistance of police officers. She appeared before the grand jury to corroborate the affidavit.

Three named in the more incisive indictments returned by the grand jury, in addition to Keyes, are: Charles Reimer, confidential investigator for the District Attorney; Ben and Dave Gottsch, former owners of a Spring-street tailor shop who were held on the same charges as Kellar. They are asserted to have been arranged and accepted: Ed and Jack Rosenberg, brothers, and former defendants in the Julian stock fiasco cases; Jacob Bennett, alias Jack Bennett, stock market operator, and the Julian Bennett, alias A. I. Lester, former head of a motor finance concern.

The first of the two new indictments involve Keyes, the Gottschs, Rosenberg, Reimer and Bennett.

The second true bill asserts forty counts of bribery and in addition asserted犯 of the Julian cases. Keyes is charged with having a hand in agreeing to dismiss several felony counts then pending against Lester.

The grand jury is in action again and the court moving forward in the bribery matter. Dist.-Atty-elect Fitts and his two assistants, Attorneys William J. Clark and Robert P. Stewart, are being placed in charge of the prosecution of Keyes and the others.

The prosecuting trio is understood to have found more witnesses to the asserted bribe plot and complete statements have been taken, pending the date the witnesses will appear before the grand jury.

MODEL FLAPPER SUED

Woman Wants Divorce from Wife Who Personified 1929 Type

The 1929 model flapper looks up in her description given in a cross-complaint filed in the Superior Court by Harry A. Anhorn, against his wife, Louise.

According to Anhorn, his wife had been a 1929 flapper; that she wanted drink and bright colors, and that she must be the one who would be most suitable; that she liked to go out with men to string "hem along"; that she loved to swear because she felt so good afterward.

An horn, on top of it all, she absolutely refused to cook and wash dishes for him.

The husband further asserts that on one occasion when he objected to Mrs. Anhorn riding on a surf board with a native Hawaiian, she told him he was an old fogey.

ELECTION RETROSPECT AS BASIS

Analysis of Campaign Personality, Prosperity, Safety

Pain for President-elect Hoover featured the sermon preaches Tupper at West Hollywood in the aftermath of the election.

"The dominant—and deciding factor there were in the significant election revolution of November 6, was Personality, prohibition and money," he said. "Who questions the latter?"

"The personal element of the successful candidate here is a man of vision, ambition, integrity and ideals and with a clear record, doctrine with dogma and with service."

"The recent Presidential election is a remarkable vindication of the principles of prohibition in connection with the most moral triumph ever achieved by any nation. The name of Hoover stands to be immortalized under his Waterlow cabinet."

MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Associated Press is exclusively entitled to the news from member news bureaus and from other news bureaus credited to this paper and also all local news published here within.

The Times aims at all times to be accurate in its established statement of fact. Readers who discover any important inaccuracy or misinterpretation of the President's words, though the London Daily Telegraph attempts to challenge his figures
on the present relative cruiser strength of the two countries. This question, of course, is entirely beside the point,
made in another portion of the address,
that the principles of cruiser limitation
proposed by America and Great Britain
at Geneva are in direct conflict. The Manchester Guardian, another influential British paper, makes this significant comment: "If Europe wants American
help she must be prepared to pay the price, which is one we need not be ashamed to pay."

In Germany the speech is generally
praised, though both in Berlin and Paris
there is a tendency to read into it many things which are not there. One interpretation is that "the United States will not accept a cut in the debt of the European countries of 50 per cent—the only possible solution of the final reparations
question—unless France and Great Britain
are willing to adopt a stringent disarmament policy."

What the President said about European debts was the terse comment that the United States could better afford to lose the money than the debtors could afford not to pay. In this he doubtless
was referring to the effect of regulation
upon future credit.

To twist such an utterance into an offer to purchase disarmament by forgoing obligations requires more mental ingenuity than is required to understand the President's very plain English. Such a conclusion is negated by the declaration elsewhere in the speech that so far as armament is a financial problem, America is much better able to afford it than Europe.

The height of willful misinterpretation was reached, as one would expect, in Moscow, where the Pravda insists that the speech is plain proof that "American imperialism" is to be continued!

Generally speaking, however, foreign reaction to the speech has been good,
and it seems to be accepted that America has no chip on her shoulder, but on the contrary is working sincerely for peace. The more this impression, the one which President Coolidge must have hoped to convey, is disseminated the better for the world.

Returning to the Parliamentary debate, the concluding paragraph of Premier Baldwin's speech is worthy of special note, in view of the coming change
of administration:

"American statesmen do not know European statesmen, and European statesmen do not know American statesmen. Their only intercourse is in the form of written dispatches which must travel across 3000 miles of water. In the circumstances it is very difficult to get mutual understanding."

This difficulty if it exists is obviously will disappear to a large extent with President Hoover's accession, since his personal knowledge of and personal acquaintance with European statesmen is not surpassed, even in Europe. The commopolitan character of Hoover's experience evidently is going to prove a most valuable asset, both to the United States and to the world.

ON THE OTHER HAND

A popular idea is that at the short
session of Congress the statesmen should pass the Boulder Dam bill and a farm relief measure and then quit. Just like that. But that is not what will happen.

Congress will do a little working and a lot of talking, but will probably have to adjourn before disposing of either of these impressive matters.

CHAIR OF JAZZ

Hungary seems to be hungry for our
jazz and lots of the pests of Budapest
are playing it. Although the gypsy musicians of the country are hostile to American music the dwellers in the cities are strong for it. The great Conservatory of Music in Budapest has created a regular chair of jazz in that institution. Yet there are some who say that jazz doesn't need a chair—it
needs a heart.

BLACK-SHIRT GOVERNMENT

Mussolini is fixing it so that the grand council of the Fascist organization
shall have the last word on all government policies and legislation—ranging from the royal succession down to naming
the Roman traffic cops. What would be thought in this country if the Republican National Committee should dictate the government to this extent?

Even if a political party is patriotic and
popular its official machinery should not be dowered with absolute and enduring authority.

SACROSANCT

The London police force has been
looked up to by the Britons as incorrup-
tible and undefiled, but the night clubs
of the metropolis are said to have brought scandal to this ancient and honorable organization. Certain gambling houses began paying for special privileges until a regular system of graft and blackmail seemed to have been created. It is hard to say how deep the organization has been honeycombed with this form of perfidy, but
the revelations thus far made are quite shocking to the English mind. The Briton likes to look at his cop as a cross
between Bayard and Galahad.

THE NEW LIGHT

Very naturally the Democratic politicians are ready to toss Gov. Smith into the discard and wish one another in giving precedence to Franklin D. Roosevelt for the party nomination four years
hence. These advance movements are easy, but they seldom mean anything.

The executive of a State like New York is always Presidential timber, but Frank-

Democrat will have the temerity to indulge such speculation at this time.

He entered the campaign almost at the

EUROPEAN REACTIONS
Discussions in Parliament and in the newspapers of Great Britain and the continent make it plain that President Coolidge measurably advanced the cause of disarmament when, in his Armistice Day speech, he disclosed frankly the American position on this and other international questions. The speech formed
the basis of one of the most important
debates Parliament has had for several years. While Parliament declined to vote complete repudiation of the British-French naval accord in the form proposed by Lloyd George, it did so only
after Premier Baldwin had given plain
intimation that he does not consider the pact binding upon Great Britain, and had said: "We must begin all over again."

It would be overoptimistic to assert
that these words mean that Britain is ready to meet the terms of America on naval limitation, but they certainly indicate a willingness to renew discussions
and to make concessions.

In Great Britain there seems to be
neither misunderstanding nor willful
misinterpretation of the President's words, though the London Daily Telegraph attempts to challenge his figures
on the present relative cruiser strength of the two countries. This question, of

American position on this and other international questions. The speech formed
the basis of one of the most important
debates Parliament has had for several years. While Parliament declined to vote complete repudiation of the British-French naval accord in the form proposed by Lloyd George, it did so only
after Premier Baldwin had given plain
intimation that he does not consider the
pact binding upon Great Britain, and had said: "We must begin all over again."

It would be overoptimistic to assert
that these words mean that Britain is
ready to meet the terms of America on naval
limitation, but they certainly indicate a willingness to renew discussions
and to make concessions.

In Great Britain there seems to be
neither misunderstanding nor willful
misinterpretation of the President's
words, though the London Daily Telegraph attempts to challenge his figures
on the present relative cruiser strength of the two countries. This question, of course, is entirely beside the point,
made in another portion of the address,
that the principles of cruiser limitation
proposed by America and Great Britain
at Geneva are in direct conflict. The Manchester Guardian, another influential British paper, makes this significant comment: "If Europe wants American
help she must be prepared to pay the price, which is one we need not be
ashamed to pay."

In Germany the speech is generally
praised, though both in Berlin and Paris
there is a tendency to read into it many
things which are not there. One interpretation is that "the United States will
not accept a cut in the debt of the European countries of 50 per cent—the
only possible solution of the final reparations
question—unless France and Great Britain
are willing to adopt a stringent disarma-
ment policy."

What the President said about European debts was the terse comment that
the United States could better afford to lose the money than the debtors could afford not to pay. In this he doubtless
was referring to the effect of regulation
upon future credit.

—Abraham Lincoln.

TODAY'S BIBLE COTT

Thine own friend, and thy father's friend, forsooth, neither go into thy brother's house in the day of thy calamity; for better is a neighbor that is near than a brother far off. Prov. xxvii:10.

NEVER TOUCHED 'EM
Somebody says that fashion wears out more clothes than it does women.
Ain't it the truth? The ladies will come back for more.

WASTED LIVES
There seem to be more drama and heartache in the sinking of the Vestsris than in any marine tragedy of this decade. The great pity of it seems to be that it need not have happened. It was not an act of the storm king.

PARTY OF PROTEST

The Democrats garnered approximately 40 per cent of the popular vote which is much better than they have been in the habit of doing in recent years. As the brake on the wheels of government the Democracy has a distinct mission and value.

ON THE OTHER HAND

A popular idea is that at the short
session of Congress the statesmen should
pass the Boulder Dam bill and a farm
relief measure and then quit. Just like that. But that is not what will happen.

Congress will do a little working and a lot of talking, but will probably have to
adjourn before disposing of either of
these impressive matters.

CHAIR OF JAZZ

Hungary seems to be hungry for our
jazz and lots of the pests of Budapest
are playing it. Although the gypsy musicians of the country are hostile to American music the dwellers in the cities are strong for it. The great Conservatory of Music in Budapest has created a regular chair of jazz in that institution. Yet there are some who
say that jazz doesn't need a chair—it
needs a heart.

BLACK-SHIRT GOVERNMENT

Mussolini is fixing it so that the
grand council of the Fascist organization
shall have the last word on all government policies and legislation—ranging
from the royal succession down to naming
the Roman traffic cops. What would be thought in this country if the Republican National Committee should dictate the government to this extent?

Even if a political party is patriotic and
popular its official machinery should
not be dowered with absolute and enduring authority.

SACROSANCT

The London police force has been
looked up to by the Britons as incorrup-
tible and undefiled, but the night clubs
of the metropolis are said to have brought scandal to this ancient and
honorable organization. Certain gambling houses began paying for special
privileges until a regular system of
graft and blackmail seemed to have been created. It is hard to say how
deep the organization has been honey-
combed with this form of perfidy, but
the revelations thus far made are quite shocking to the English mind. The Briton likes to look at his cop as a cross
between Bayard and Galahad.

THE NEW LIGHT

Very naturally the Democratic politicians are ready to toss Gov. Smith into
the discard and wish one another in giving
precedence to Franklin D. Roosevelt for the party nomination four years
hence. These advance movements are
easy, but they seldom mean anything.

When the Casino de Paris has a premiere "Tout Paris"—which happens to be the apellation of the new show—has what you might call a field day, in the words of May Kirkhead, writing in the latest edition of the Calligrapher's Tribune.

With such favorites as Jane Marnac, Saint-Granier, the Tillie and Mitty team, the Lawrence Tiller Girls, the Gomes Trio, she writes, "one would expect the show to be a thriller, but if it can be under the enthusiasm of the audience last week, it is the most gorgous spectacle that this well-known show-house has ever put together." She continues:

"Among the numbers winning the audience are a beautiful water scene, the bursting dam, in which Jane Marnac is at her best, thought she is in all the big scenes and is perfect in each. And there was a Spanish scene, a Spanish peasant scene built around the Gomez Trio. Mitty and Tillie are good in a football dance."

GUIDING YOUR CHILD

FIRST PLACE

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Now and then for a little day or a little hour, every mother's child needs to feel, without necessarily knowing it, that the love holds first place in his mother's love.

In a family where the mother loves all her children with fairly equal love, this happens quite naturally and quite unconsciously. The child who is the birthday baby or the baby with the won some small honor in the classroom or on the athletic field gets the center of the stage, and his due measure of attention, gifts or praise.

But in homes in which a frequently happens, the great difference between the amounts of love the various children receive, the mother must be acutely conscious of this need of every child to be first sometimes. She must try in manner and in ritual to make up in depth for the spontaneous lack of which which may be greater. If she does not do this, the less loved child will feel the situation with cruel sensitiveness.

Gertrude and Helen were sisters. Their mother loved Gertrude best. Her birthday anniversary was an occasion. It was heralded by secret preparations and the rustlings of tissue paper. The day itself was one of party frocks, masses of flowers and high festivity.

Helen's birthday anniversary was also an occasion in the air. At the breakfast table a few hasty packages appeared, and at supper there was a birthday cake. It was a half-hearted, makeshift affair. The last drop of disillusionment was added when Helen discovered lying on her sister's dressing-table on the morning after her own birthday the counterpart of the blue beads her mother had given her the day before. It was clear that not even this once had she been given the love she deserved.

Such experiences leave all too much impressions on the childish mind. They are more than the passing pricks of disappointment. They influence profoundly the individual worth of himself. They may even induce a feeling of inferiority which blights his faith in his ability to achieve success in work. They may inspire deep distrust in his ability to win love or first place with anyone.

The Orillion, Sidney Roger of Los Angeles is staying at 217 Avenue Gambetta in Paris. Miss Mary Bell of San Diego is another recent California arrival in the French capital.

The generosity of William Clark

Chase has enabled the Bibliothèque Nationale de France to acquire a number of valuable literary documents and coins, it was anounced last week. Fractures and Broken Bones

Fractures of broken bones should always be treated by a doctor or surgeon but, as usually the person is most important, the person in most pain.

A simple fracture may become a serious compound fracture which is much more dangerous and hard to heal.

The broken ends of bones are sharp and the muscles, being contracted, tend to pull them apart.

Spells of broken bones are sharp as possible to the sides of the fracture.

Story of Tragic Sinking of Vestris and Heroic Rescues Depicted by Camera

Enthusiasm Over Their Safe Arrival in Port following harrowing experiences floundering in rough seas and life-boats was displayed by these passengers and members of the crew of the ill-fated Vestris which sank off the coast of Virginia on the 12th inst. with great loss of life. The above scene was typical aboard rescue ships, which picked up survivors, as they arrived in New York. The picture was taken aboard the S. S. American Shipper, commanded by Capt. Schuyler Cummings, which brought in the greatest number of passengers and crew members. (P. & A. photo.)

Surprising Calmness Was Exhibited by the Photographer who snapped this picture of a boatload of survivors as it was being lowered from the listing Vestris into the storm-swept sea. Stories told by survivors and members of the crew prevented passengers from getting aboard the lifeboats and of their own safety. They have served to make this disaster one of the most terrible in marine annals. Merchant ships and United States Navy cruisers rushed to the scene of the wreck and picked up as many of these lifeboats as possible. (P. & A. photo.)

That All Lifeboats on the Vestris Were Not Pressed Into Service is shown in this remarkable photograph of the sinking vessel. A large lifeboat is in the foreground while others are visible in the right background. According to reports, scores of passengers were thrown into the waters because of inefficient handling of lifeboats. (P. & A. photo.)

One of the Miraculous Rescues reported following sinking of the Vestris was that of Mrs. Clara G. Ball, stewardess, who floated in the water for twenty-one hours. (P. & A. photo.)

Another Remarkable Rescue was that of Captain Cuthbert of Chicago, a passenger on the ill-fated Vestris, who was kept afloat in the water by a life preserver for seventeen hours before he was rescued by the S. S. Berlin. This P. & A. photo shows him being pulled from the sea.

A Captain May Go Down with his ship but not a mascot. James Ray, assistant steward on the Vestris, saw to it that "Tiger Lil," the feline ship pet, was saved.

Waves Were Running High Off Cape Hatteras when the Vestris went down, it is shown by this photograph taken from the S. S. Berlin as a full boatload of passengers and crew members was being lifted aboard. Only about half the lifeboat passengers had life belts, it is shown. (P. & A. photo.)

The Vestris Was Almost on Her Beam End before the last lifeboat cleared her. According to this remarkable photograph showing the sinking vessel, a full load of passengers which has just cleared the listing ship. Scores were fortunate enough to be taken aboard the lifeboats and lost their lives before help could arrive. (P. & A. photo.)

A Greater Percentage of Members of the Crew of the Vestris than ever before in history was saved, according to press dispatches, and officers of the ship ordered to appear before a United States Commissioner to testify. Of the crew, left to right, are Percy Hudson, deck steward; Thomas Boyd, third engineer; Thomas Boyd, assistant steward; and Roger John...

This Exclusive Photograph Shows the Vestris Desperately Battling Angry Seas and high winds shortly before it succumbed to its watery grave. It was taken by a passenger aboard the sinking vessel as it assumed a sharp list. The United States government is attempting to determine a cause for the disaster. (P. & A. photo.)

CLASSICAL ART OBJECTS ARRIVE*Collection Shipped With Great Care*Venice High School Head Brings Pieces*Antiques Being Prepared for Exhibition*BY NEETA MARQUIS
After two months on the water in transport from Italy, a valuable collection of Greek and Roman antiquities purchased last summer for purposes of study and exhibition at the Classical Center of the Los Angeles city schools, 358 Chamber of Commerce Building, has been received and is being installed and classified.The antiques, twenty-five in number, consist of specimens of rare pottery dating from perhaps 3000 years before Christ to the first or second century A.D. On account of their fragility they were shipped with the greatest care. The famous 1000-ton cargo of Italian marbles, majolica, and other art wares which left Leghorn, Italy, September 5, last, on the Italian motor ship, Felis, en route directly to San Pedro, where the vessel docked on the 8th instant.

The classical and modern potteries are designed for the Southern California Christmas trade.

ANTIQUES PURCHASED

The purchase of the antique specimens was made by Edward W. Clark, principal of the Venice High School, under authority of the Board of Education, which last appropriated $1000 for the purpose. Calculations on $200 per cent of transportation. Prof. Clark, who is an authority on archeological art, a private collector and a one-time resident of Rome, invested the remainder, buying from a private antiquarian in Italy. In addition, he purchased for the Venice High School a replica of the famed "Victory" of Samothrace, in Carrara marble, with a pedestal of green marble, and $100 worth of antiquities. The largest, as well as the youngest, of the pieces in the classical center is a clay amphora, or vase for the transportation of oil or wine, which stands about four feet high and measures fifteen or sixteen inches in diameter. This is the third purchase Prof. Clark has made for the classical center and he expresses himself as satisfied that he has assembled some of the finest specimens of ancient art ever brought to Los Angeles.

VALUABLE PIECE

The most interesting and valuable piece, from the archaeological standpoint, is a slender clay drinking cup about four inches high, obviously handmade, but so crude in both design and workmanship it is not in the same classifications of Greek art. It resembles the so-called "owl" vase of Troy, as on the front, opposite the single handle, it carries the suggestion of a short, broad face, the vessel having a bulbous base shaped after the vessels made and baked in after the fashion of the modern "gingerbread man." Prof. Clark classifies this as among the earliest attempts of man to make earthenware. It may easily have survived from 3000 years or more before Christ.

The most beautiful specimen in the collection is a large Greek vase of black-varnished clay, as used from 1000 B.C. on, with a decoration of black figures against a terra cotta background, exquisite in both design and execution—a specimen of the finest art work of antiquity.

OTHER OBJECTS

Other objects of both beauty and unique interest include red-figure Attic pottery of the fifth century B.C., an Etruscan vase and a bottle with both drinking cup and stopper, of black clay; a tall jar with two spouts like a pair of ministers, each equipped with a strainer, decorated with a curvilinear design taken from the tentacles of the cuttlefish—Cretan model; a Roman drinking cup for banquets, a shallow saucer stemmed; a vase-like cup with open handles; a Roman cup for drinking bouts, in the shape of a bull's head, which had to be drained before it left the drinker's hand, as

HISTORICAL TREE SET IN GARDEN*Patriotic Group J.A.R. in Planting Ceremony Sunday Afternoon

An addition to the Oceanside of the California Botanic Gardens was made yesterday afternoon when women of the Grand Army of the Republic dedicated a historical tree from the Confederate prison at Andersonville.

Veterans of the Civil, Spanish-American and World Wars and members of the Girl Scouts and Campfire Girls were present for the ceremonies, which were in charge of Mrs. Ella Hall Worthy, State patriotic instructor for the Women of the G.A.R.

The history of the tree was told to the assembly by Mrs. Florence E. Hibbard, department president, and Mrs. Worthy delivered the dedicatory address.

It would stand only when placed upside down; a fruit dish, bowl for bread, and candle holder, all in lamps of various design, one attached to a small altar and doubtless used in connection with household worship, one in the shape of a bull's head, with two knobs corresponding to the animal's nostrils.

One of the types used as a New Year's gift, carved with the figures of small loaves of bread, the figure of Victory, and a coin bearing the double-face of Janus. Four small toilet articles came from a house in New Naples.

This is the third purchase Prof. Clark has made for the classical center and he expresses himself as satisfied that he has assembled some of the finest specimens of ancient art ever brought to Los Angeles.

ZONING PLEA GOES TODAY TO COUNCIL*Residents Appeal to Get Light Manufactures in Restricted District

An effort to upset present residential zoning restrictions of that district south of Washington Boulevard to West Adams and east of San Pedro street to Griffith, Mrs. Sarah Wilson and others will present their appeal to the City Planning Commission of the City Council today to change the zone from B to D thus permitting light manufacturers in that area.

The change in zoning is opposed by the city planning commission and the boards of directors of the Chamber of Commerce and realty board. Sentiment of those bodies is outlined by W. L. Pollard, chairman of the city planning committee of the realty board, who after a survey presented the following reasons for not disturbing the use of property in the district:

There is sufficient area in this general district now zoned for light manufacturing; that the change to industrial use would not affect areas for homes; that in the area a colored population has established churches, Y.M.C.A.'s, their homes and social centers, in which use of the property their rights should be protected and no zoning changes would require that these people be disturbed in their use of property in the district.
